What is a Topic Ticker® ?

A Topic Ticker® is a time series representation of a Topic Model over varying periods and intervals (e.g. 1 Day/ 1 Minute, 7 Day/Hourly, 100 Day/Daily). Sometimes referred to as 30-second Tick Data, Topic Tickers can be analyzed and processed just like market tick data. Each time slot in the series represents the Source Weighted Count for a Topic Model across selected sources. Time Series are generated on demand and in Real Time. Low latency is achieved using Grid technology and Terabytes of memory. Sources and authors can be custom weighted (i.e. AP, Reuters, DJ (3), Twitter User (-4), Blog Xyz (6) at Query Request time to allow for Source Weighted Time Series values to be generated on demand.

When it was chicken feet, rubber, whatever it might be, people on both sides try like to talk a lot and then nothing really happens. Is there any real risk of a bigger trade problem? >> I think the risk of a bigger trade problem is pretty high and especially gets high later on this year. As china's stimulus-focused demand, the demand that comes from there, just adding tremendous liquidity to the economy domestically since this crisis began. As that stimulus program begins to back off, there's going to be exports. Renewed focus on promoting giving our higher domestic savings we'll be focused on exports and protecting american jobs. Obviously the politics can get ugly on both sides here and not only between the u.s. And china but between --> how damaging could it be to the u.s. >> We have an election coming up in november, so we have a congress. Democratic majority in the
